

Selecting a Pediatrician

A pediatrician is a physician who specializes in the treatment of children, from newborn through the end of high school.

When selecting a pediatrician there are several factors you should keep in mind:

- The location of the pediatrician's office; is it convenient to your home, work, or your child's daycare?
- Is the pediatrician board certified?
- Is there After Hours availability?
- Are there other pediatricians available to see your child when your pediatrician is not available?

The pediatricians at Austin Regional Clinic share a preventive approach to medical care. Each of the 13 pediatric offices in the greater Austin area offers a diverse group of doctors to choose from in a location close to your neighborhood.

ARC offers the added convenience of our After Hours Clinics at ARC Far West, ARC Kyle Plum Creek, ARC Round Rock, ARC Southwest, and ARC Now Clinic in Cedar Park, open evenings, weekends and holidays. For those urgent concerns in the middle of the night, we provide late-night phone nurses. When your doctor's office is closed, a pediatrician from the group is always on call.

We want you to choose your child's pediatrician and have the most comfortable patient-doctor relationship possible. If you would like a recommendation for an ARC pediatrician, please call our information service at 512-ARC-INFO (512-272-4636) or check our website at AustinRegionalClinic.com and we will be happy to assist you with your decision.

MEET OUR PEDIATRICIANS

For expectant families, most of our clinics offer times to meet the group of pediatricians at that location. Many of the pediatricians also offer prenatal consultations without charge. Find a location below and call to RSVP or for more information.
