REPRODUCTIVE MEDICINE

If you have not been able to have a baby, you are not alone. Starting a family and conceiving a child seems simple and natural, but fertility depends on many factors. Infertility affects 10 to 15 percent of couples of childbearing age, making it the most common health condition for adults ages 20 to 45.

You and your partner may be diagnosed with infertility if you are not able to conceive a child. Access to reproductive care is part of the ARC Advantage.
